“ I have so many memories of Alecia. With us only being a little less than 14 years apart, i would take her for walks in her stroller and people would think she was my baby.

I remember taking a TON of pictures of her and making a photo album of only her.

I remember her loving the Care Bears Movie and watching it over and over.

I remember her sneaking out of her bed and crawling around on my floor just to sleep by me and then crawling into my bed and snuggling with me.

I remember that every time i left the house when she was younger she would CRY so loud for me to come back.

I remember the good and the bad but i will always cherish the good in her.

I miss her so much and I will never stop missing her or loving her.

Love to you Alecia. Fly high with the angels and let all those demons go.

Love Always, your sister Chrissy

“ I remember when Alecia, my sister, and I made a "commercial" for Ting Tong 2, an alternative to other medications for gas. (We were young.) We had a riot trying not to laugh getting through our lines, the ridiculousness of the video, and Aunt Nita letting out a comically loud yawn during one take.

I remember always sneaking away to Alecia's bedroom to play her Super Nintendo because I had only a Sega Genesis, and her games were so much cooler.

I remember sharing White Castle hamburgers and chicken rings, attending countless barbeques and holiday celebrations, and having fun with Alecia in the pool and on the trampoline at the Grossman household.

I remember going bowling with Alecia just down the street and somehow, miraculously, bowling eight strikes (two Turkeys and two other strikes). I hadn't bowled such a high score ever in my life, and I haven't done so since. She was the only witness to that feat, which is especially hard to believe considering I also once bowled an 8.

She was the cool cousin who always had fun stuff to do. She had a big heart and a warm soul. She will be tremendously missed by her family but never forgotten.

“ I remember when this little blonde haired girl would say her name and it was Alecia Francis, not just Alecia. So she asked my name and I told her Donna and she said Donna what? And I said Donna Marie, she then kept calling me Domanee combining my 1st and middle name. Will never forget that little girl. Love you family, wish I could be there and hug you all. I wish you blessings and strength thru this terrible time.
