“ *I am so sorry for your loss. Losing a loved one in death is never easy. One thing that I've found to help is the hope found at John 5:28, 29. It says: "All those in the memorial tombs will hear his voice and come out, those who practiced good things to a resurrection of life..." Our creator promises to resurrect those who are sleeping in death. You may wonder, when and how? Visit www.jw.org and download the free book, What Does the Bible Really Teach, for the answer. I am sure that you will be comforted as I have been.*

“ I knew her as Grandma Berry, My Grandma Berry. She was gentle, loving and kind. She always had a sparkle in her eyes and the best (cutest) sense of humor. I have so many wonderful memories that I will forever keep in my heart. I thank God that he planned my life to be touched by hers, I don't know if she ever really knew what an influence she was to me with her expert baking, cake decorating and culinary delights, it's the very reason I have such a passion for the same, that and that God blessed me with a talent and sent her as my teacher...God is good. Though I will miss her and have missed her dearly , I am glad she is at peace and the suffering is no more.....I know this life is merely a life to prepare and teach us for something greater and to learn to live as Christ lived to honor our Father God who loves us greater than anyone. Grandma lived her life sweetly, never spewing a negative word, or a mean gesture, a dirty look, a ill will towards anybody...she was my earthly guide, mentor, a true blessing from God...I will always Love you Grandma Berry.

“ My fondest memories of Grandma Berry were going over as a kid and enjoying the glass of milk and goodies she always set out. She is loved and won't be forgotten. •Heather Centracchio•
