“ He was simply the best and will be missed by many who grew up watching him from under the card table. Very sad to lose such a wonderful uncle.

“ My mom was very good friends with Tony. There wasn't a Saturday night from my childhood that I don't remember seeing Tony sitting around the table with my mom and all their friends playing poker. He was always such a nice man. My mom recently passed on March 24, 2022. On the day she died, she'd published her latest book, High Stakes, co-authored by Anthony Lombardo. I remember my mom talking to me about the book and that she was so excited that she and Tony were collaborating together on it. I know they're in Heaven playing poker together and watching over all those they love. Tony will be missed by us all.
