PS

“ My Aunt Diane was a beautiful woman who was very tall, 5'10", but not as tall as me...lol! She was graceful and very close to her family. As a family, weekly her and her sisters, and sometimes her brother Bill would meet for Lunch at "Granny's " restaurant on 10 mile Rd. In Warren, even though she never heard all the conversations of her mother and her sisters she read their lips and laughed along. I showed up one Friday to catch up with them. Upon entering the waitress looked me up and down, looked again at my shoes then my face and turned to Aunt Diane and said, "this one must be your daughter?" Aunt Diane looked at me as I did her and we started laughing as we both in "unison" pointed to the shortest blondest sister in the bunch. Our family had a good laugh at how many people frequently thought I was her daughter because of my height 6' plus and hair color, brunette, and that my real beautiful mom had to have been the post man's daughter. I never was embarrassed or angry, neither was my mom, we just knew where I got my "genes"... literally, at the tall girl store with Aunt Diane! Lol!
