“ Today, I bid you my final farewell, Ciocia Ella. While it pains me terribly to write this, I am also at peace knowing you are no longer suffering and stressing about this terrible disease that took you from us. We will miss you so much. I will remember all the wonderful times I had with you growing up to now. Thank you for setting such a wonderful example of what a kind, generous, and loving person should be. You’ve taught me so much, and I plan to pass your life’s teachings on to others. We all love you so much, Ciocia Ella. Until we meet again.

We took this journey together until you had to walk alone. Why does it feel like I haven't done enough? While your pain has ended, ours is just beginning. I know you're at peace in loving arms of the Lord. Just a little while though and we'll be together again. We love and miss you so much.*

The eternity is ours- please, wait patiently until we meet again. For now though, we see you in everything you loved. We'll never forget...
