“ *Last Friday heaven gained an Angel. .
For those who do not know. My Babcia has been fighting a debilitating stroke coupled with Alzheimer’s for the last decade and is finally free from the shackles put on her by this worldly body. Growing up she was my mother while my parents worked. She was the rock to our family. She was the sense of reason and gavel of justice to all in our household. She was the person who’s molded me the most and the person that I looked up to and respected more with each passing day. She sacrificed her life in Poland to make a new one here for us. She taught us faith, she taught us fairness and she taught us foundation in which we have applied and instilled in our own family. In a series of unfortunate events, the most independent woman I know that was held captive and at the mercy of those around her for the last several years. It was no easy task for my Mother and Father to tend to her needs over the years (you should both be inducted to sainthood for this). She will be forever missed and never forgotten. I have been broken over the years during her condition and now in pieces over her loss. Your shackles are no more. You are reunited now with Dziadziu as he’s been waiting for your arrival. Till we meet again, I love you Babcia. You were and will always be everything to me*
